Preventing Cervical Cancer

How to Partner for Sustainability
Cure Cervical Cancer

Vietnam - December, 2017
The Burden of Cervical Cancer

• Globally, cervical cancer accounts for almost 300,000 deaths of women every year.

• There are 530,000 new cases of cervical cancer reported every year, though this number is probably significantly under-reported.

• 83% of new cases and 85-90% of cervical cancer deaths occur in medically resource-poor countries.
Almost 300,000 women worldwide die from cervical cancer every year.

85-90% of them live in resource-poor countries.
Deaths from cervical cancer are almost 100% preventable.